Diesel Problem Continued

A write-up for this diesel problem is available in our notes section of the web page (http://www.stat.purdue.edu/~bacraig/notes582). Your task is to read this document and evaluate it using the writing rubric, also available in the notes section. I’d like to see a score for each rubric item and a sentence or two explanation for the score.

When you read the document, you will find that the student was able to obtain answers to some questions he or she asked the client prior to analysis, but may not have obtained information on all the questions you think are important. This would be something you’d want to mention in your evaluation.

We will discuss the content, style, analysis, and prose in next Wed’s class. As before, please make two copies of your homework. You will hand in a copy of your rubric evaluation at the beginning of class and then we will discuss our scores during class.
