Company Information: Department of Statistics, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260

Company Information: Founded in 1787, the University of Pittsburgh is one of the oldest institutions of higher education in the United States. Pitt is a member of the Association of American Universities (AAU), which comprises 62 preeminent doctorate-granting research institutions in North America. The University is located in the Oakland area of Pittsburgh, a short distance from Pittsburgh's vibrant downtown. Home to prestigious museums, world-class hospitals and universities and international cuisine, Oakland is considered the cultural, academic and medical center of Pittsburgh

Position Title: Visiting Lecturer

Duties and Responsibilities: Pending budgetary approval, this Visiting Lecturer position starts September 1, 2016 and is a one-year appointment. Duties are to teach service and undergraduate level statistics courses. The teaching load will be three courses per semester.

Position Qualifications: A PhD in Statistics or a related field and demonstrated instructional excellence in introductory undergraduate statistics.

Salary Range: Competitive.

Benefits: The University of Pittsburgh is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer. The university is dedicated to building a diverse faculty and staff and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities and veterans. The Department of Statistics is interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity of the academic community through their research, teaching and/or service.

Website: www.stat.pitt.edu

Application Information: Interested applicants should send a current resume, a teaching statement and three letters of recommendation to statfac@pitt.edu.

Contact Email: http://www.stat.pitt.edu/

Application Deadline: Review of applications begins March 21, 2016, but applications will receive full consideration until position is filled.