Tenure – Track Assistant Professor, Department of Mathematics
Bridgewater State University

Company Information: Bridgewater State University is a medium-sized masters-level institution located about 30 miles from Boston, and 36 miles from Providence. We have an average class size of 22 students, and a student to faculty ratio of 19:1.

The Department of Mathematics is located in the new $100M Dana Mohler-Faria Center for Science and Mathematics and serves over 350 majors. In addition to other programs, we offer a BS in mathematics with a concentration in statistics.

Position Title: Tenure – Track Assistant Professor, Department of Mathematics

Duties and Responsibilities: The Department of Mathematics at Bridgewater State University is searching for a statistician or probability theorist at the assistant professor level who is passionate about teaching, dedicated to providing life-changing mentoring and research experiences for our undergraduate students, and will make creative contributions to our statistics program. The university generously supports the work of faculty through internal grants for faculty research, teaching, travel, and undergraduate research.

Applicants should be prepared to teach courses in mathematics and statistics ranging from those for non-majors to upper-level proof-based courses, including the probability and statistics courses for our new statistics concentration. BSU faculty members teach 12 contact hours per semester.

In addition to a strong commitment to excellence in teaching, advising, service, research, and working in a multicultural environment that fosters diversity, applicants should also have the ability to communicate effectively in speaking and writing, to use technology effectively in teaching and learning, and to work collaboratively.

Position Qualifications: The candidate must possess a Ph.D. in statistics or a related mathematical field by September 1, 2017; and must provide evidence of teaching experience, scholarly activity, and have a commitment to public higher education.
