The Department of Statistics at the University of Virginia invites applicants for a non-tenure track Lecturer position. We seek candidates dedicated to our mission of excellence, attracted to our President’s “Big Data” initiative, and passionate about teaching in a world-class institution.

Candidates will be expected to teach at the graduate and undergraduate levels and provide service to the University, Department and professional organizations. The anticipated appointment start date is July 25, 2017. This position is a three-year renewable appointment.

The Department of Statistics at the University of Virginia was established in 1989 and currently has 12 faculty members. The Department works closely with the Biostatistics Department at the University Medical School, Quantitative Collaborative and other departments on campus. Faculty interest range from theoretical to applied statistics (including statistics in the social, medical, and forensic sciences) and we supervise a growing number of students at all levels. The department offers the Bachelor of Arts, Masters of Science and PhD degrees. The University strategic plan emphasizes computation science and large-scale date analysis. Centrally located in Virginia, Charlottesville boasts a thriving cultural life, with easy access to recreational venues and convenient travel to Richmond, Washington D.C. and SAMSI, which combine to make UVa a most desirable place to live and work.

Qualifications

Applicants must be on track to receive a Ph.D. In Statistics or a related field by May 2017, and must hold a Ph.D. at the time of appointment.
