Head of Research and Statistics Unit

London, UK

Website BFI British Film Institute
We are the British Film Institute. Passionate about film. We use National Lottery funding to inspire people to watch, make and learn about film.

Salary £54,849 – £64,161 plus generous benefits package

We are looking for a Head of our Research and Statistics Unit (RSU) to ensure that the BFI continues to offer world-class research and statistics and services. This important role will influence the vision, strategy and delivery of screen-based research and statistics.

The (RSU) gathers and publishes statistics and market intelligence and carries out and disseminates research in order to support evidence-based policy and to provide UK film and screen stakeholders with a robust information base.

At a moment of dynamic change and opportunity across the screen industries, we are seeking someone with excellent leadership, stakeholder liaison, analytical, project management and communication skills.

To be successful you will have a proven track record of delivering and leading on key research initiatives and an excellent knowledge of the UK’s screen-based industries as well as local and national government policies relating to the film, screen media and cultural sectors. You will also have the ability to build strong partnerships with a range of stakeholders in order to help shape the landscape of industry research.

Based in Central London, you will enjoy benefits such as our pension scheme, excellent family support, 28-33 days annual leave, tickets to BFI festivals and events plus many others.

Further details about the post can be obtained by visiting http://www.bfi.org.uk/about-bfi/job-opportunities.

The closing date for applications is 20 August 2017.

Interviews will be held on 8 September 2017.

We support diversity and inclusion
